Psalm LXV: Thy Praise Alone. Tune: York

This hymn was sung in 1718 at the first Commencement after the naming of Yale College and has been sung in every century since. The fourth verse was composed by Robert Blocker, dean of the School of Music.

Thy praise alone, O Lord, doth reign
In Sion thine own hill;
Their vows to thee they do maintain,
And evermore fulfill.

For that thou dost their pray'rs still hear
And dost thereto agree;
Thy people all both far and near
With trust shall come to thee.

Of thy great justice hear, O God,
Our health of thee doth rise;
The hope of all the earth abroad,
And the sea-coasts likewise.

We dedicate our lives anew
That light and truth will shine
Throughout the world, O God, we pray,
To all of humankind.

CONFERRAL OF HONORARY DEGREES

Please be seated

Peter Salovey University President

Scott Allan Strobel University Provost

The tradition of awarding honorary degrees at Yale began in 1702. Conferred by the university's board of trustees, these degrees recognize pioneering achievement or exemplary contribution to the common good. The provost announces the name of each recipient, an honorary marshal places a hood over the shoulders of the recipient, and the president reads a citation and confers the degree. Recipients, by their example, encourage the graduates to aspire to excellence and to value creativity, curiosity, discipline, integrity, and a passion for public service.

Let Light and Truth Suffuse the Mind. Tune: Duke Street

These words were written for Yale Commencement exercises by Thomas H. Troeger, B.A. 1967, professor emeritus at the Yale Divinity School.

Let light and truth suffuse the mind and spread throughout the shadowed heart as what we know is redefined through science, scholarship, and art.

Our founders knew that faith requires the discipline of sturdy thought.
They trusted that the spirit's fires
burn brightest where the truth is sought.

We've learned the wisest prayer they prayed was that "more light" would guide their ways;
for we, like them, have been remade
by unexpected, slanted rays.

So let the gift of gathered light pervade the ways we learn and know, awaking wonder and delight
while knowledge, truth, and wisdom grow.
